

Alternative Answer:

The simians, in Dr. M. A. Sullivan's regard, signify the follies of humankind. At left: avarice and greed. On the right: prodigality.

The ^{plural noun} _____, in Dr. M. A. Sullivan's _____, ^{plural noun} _____ of _____, ^{plural noun} _____ signify the _____ of _____, ^{plural noun} _____ and _____, ^{noun} _____ On the right: _____, ^{noun} _____ At left: _____, ^{noun} _____

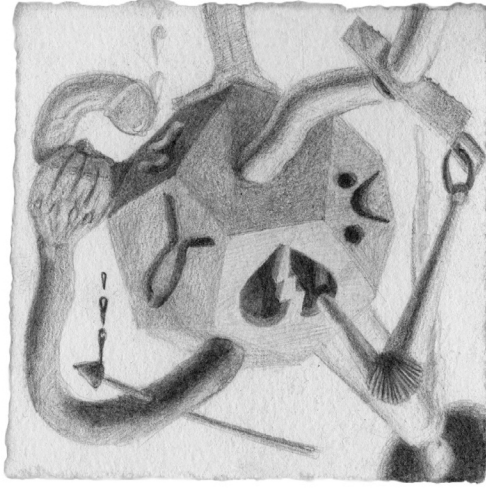

You said, "There are many _____, but they are not _____ of a _____." Then the tree, at _____, began to _____ - _____ - _____

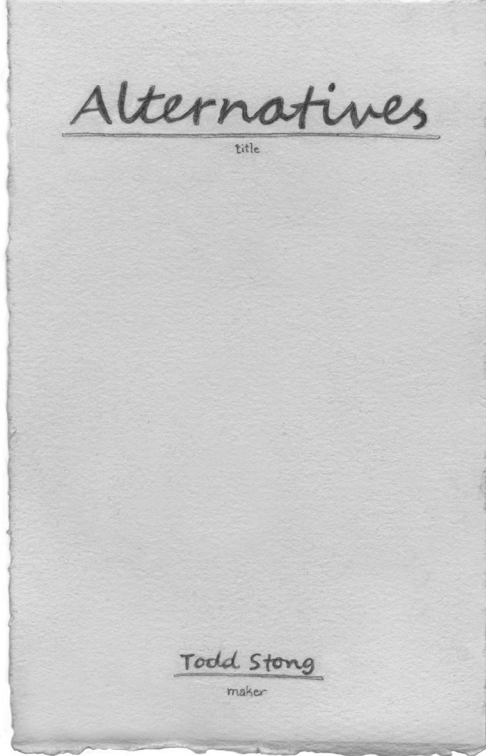

Alternative Answer: You said, "There are many truths, but they are not parts of a truth." Then the tree, at night, began to change... - Wallace Stevens

Alternative Answer:

Plato analogized. Tetrahedron as to fire. Cube as to earth. Octahedron to air. Icosahedron: water. Dodecahedron: heaven.

Plato ^{verb, past tense} _____, ^{noun} _____ Tetrahedron as to _____, ^{noun} _____ Cube as to _____, ^{noun} _____ Octahedron to _____, ^{noun} _____ Icosahedron: _____, ^{noun} _____ Dodecahedron: _____, ^{noun} _____

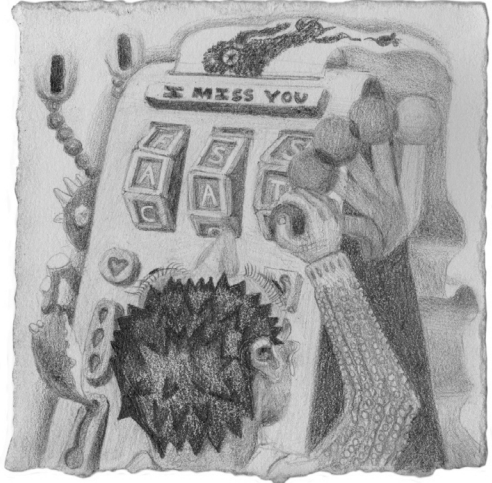

Alternative Answer:

Vladimir Horowitz told Martha Argerich that he was surprised to learn she was a woman after hearing her perform on the radio.

Vladimir Horowitz told Martha Argerich that he was ^{adjective} _____ to learn she was a(n) _____ after hearing her _____ on the _____, ^{verb} _____

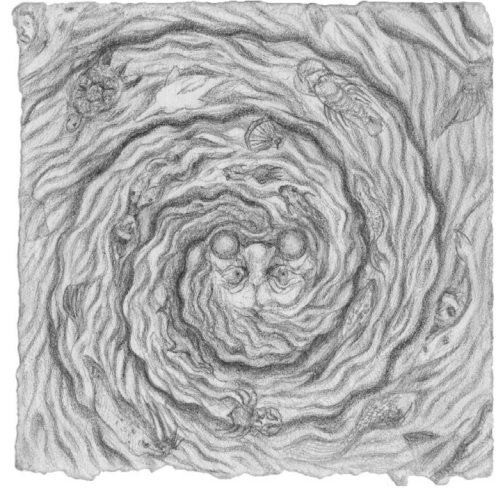

I _____ words to give way to each _____, each _____, _____ nest, wasp. _____ with _____ that feels like _____.

Alternative Answer: I wanted words to give way to each leaf, each sunspot, twig, wasp nest, wasp. Glow with light that feels like clay.

Alternative Answer:

I think of Corday with her knife, and Marat, bath darkening, when I do yesterday's dishes. The coffee grounds swirl into the catch.

I think of _____ with her knife, and _____, ^{last name} _____ bath _____, ^{present participle} _____ when I _____, ^{verb} _____ into the _____, ^{plural noun} _____ The coffee grounds _____, ^{verb} _____

Even now, _____ here, a(n) _____ away, I can feel the _____ on my stomach, the _____ pull of the _____ towards _____.

Alternative Answer: Even now, standing here, an ocean away, I can feel the long tug on my stomach, the indefatigable pull of the past towards itself.